Congratulations to Amy's Cleaners of Port Orchard for being a four-star EnviroStars certified business!

At Amy's Cleaners, a new generation of dry cleaning machinery is in place: one that uses a non-toxic hydrocarbon cleaning solvent (HCS) rather than the conventional solvent (perchloroethene, or Perc) used by most dry cleaners. There are presently few dry cleaners in the area with the HCS machinery.

Owner Kye Kim has been actively giving tours and demonstrating the equipment to colleagues in the dry cleaning business. He also publicizes his organic cleaning method to customers through a sign at the entrance to his shop: "We clean clothes with organic solvent for your health and the environment."

Amy's Cleaners has taken other steps to reduce their volume of hazardous waste, including using spot cleaners sparingly, taking careful precautions to reduce chemical spills by using secondary containment, and purchasing least toxic alternatives whenever possible.

Amy's Cleaners is also taking steps to reduce solid waste by recycling hangers, reusing or recycling plastic garment bags, and donating uncollected clothing to local charities.

With his careful business practices Mr. Kim is helping to protect the health of his staff, customers, and the environment.
